Just when things were beginning to look up for the children and financially strapped people of Moldova, back-to-back disasters struck...two years of COVID-19, followed by three years of all out war right next door.

Fallout from the pandemic and the devastating implications of Russia's imperialistic and genocidal invasion of close neighbor Ukraine have been beyond frightening. Throw in alternating droughts and floods to better comprehend the challenges faced by the most vulnerable.

In February 2022, Moldova World Children's Fund (MWCF) was already pushing the limits of its capacity to help as many as possible, when an avalanche of war victims began arriving literally overnight. Staff worked non-stop for months and twenty years' worth of cash reserves were exhausted. We remained committed to maintaining our traditional aid programs, but realized we must help thousands of desperate refugees...the great majority being mothers, grandparents, and children...some in urgent need of medical attention.

Activity highlights of the last twelve months include:

- ... foremost has been to stay the course by maintaining our 25-year support for the Drochia orphanage and continuing our commitments of education sponsorships for deserving students;
- ... two large seaborne containers with 48,000 lbs. of medical equipment, hygiene supplies, educational materials, and emergency items shipped Raleigh-Norfolk-Constanta-Chisinau by the North Carolina-Moldova Partnership and Guilford Rotary Club for distribution;
- ... MWCF's Board of Directors 2024 Annual Meeting was held in Moldova for the first time, with an in-person membership quorum attending;
- ... Casa Irina, a community center serving children of the northern villages of Ruseni and Goleni, was officially dedicated with U.S. Ambassador to Chisinau Kent Logsdon and Moldova Ambassador to Washington Viorel Ursu joining the MWCF Board and local mayors, children and parents as participants;

- ... The North Carolina-Moldova Partnership was renewed by NC Secretary of State Elaine Marshall, Prime Minister Dorin Recean, and Minister of Foreign Affairs Mihai Popsoi.
- ... Western European charity SMHO from The Netherlands provided eight large trucks of hospital beds, medical equipment and school furniture for MWCF and longtime colleague International Center for Collaboration and Development "PHOENIX" to allocate among facilities around the country;
- ... Vice Chairman Jim Olson and wife Kitty toured MWCF's ongoing and potentially future project sites in September;
- ... Regional agribusiness company Trans-Oil Group began its collaboration with MWCF by helping fund aid programs across Moldova;
- ... North Carolina congregations at Grace Church of the Mountains, Waynesville; Saint John-In-The-Wilderness, Flat Rock; and the Korean Presbyterian Church of Asheville funded major Moldovan and Ukrainian relief and recovery missions in cooperation with MWCF.

Additionally, individuals personally volunteered in driving a truckload of critical humanitarian assistance to an aid station in Kryvyi Rih, Ukraine.

Please find enclosed an updated MWCF Board of Directors catalog of member bios...with a revised front-page synopsis of operations...the back page an expanded 5-year look at financial activities.

Health issues of staff and a shortage of badly needed contributions have threatened to derail our work. Hurricane Helene and other natural disasters across the southeastern United States have curtailed fundraising efforts within MWCF's traditional donor base. This is no time to abandon ship.

The challenges facing Moldova's children in an increasingly dangerous world continue to evolve...their gripping needs must remain a priority.

You are encouraged to help us by mailing a generous gift using the enclosed return envelope or sending an online donation via the PayPal link inside our website www.moldovawcf.org.

Thank you,

Ray West, MWCF President

BOARD OF DIRECTORS CATALOG

...AS OF WINTER 2024/2025

Aid is transported across Europe by large trucks and from the United States in 45-foot seaborne containers and aboard C-17 cargo airplanes in joint effort with the N.C. Air National Guard, the office of the N.C. Secretary of State, and the official Republic of Moldova - North Carolina Partnership Program.

With roots dating back to 1998, Moldova World Children's Fund, Inc. (MWCF) is a North Carolina, USA based not-for-profit non-governmental international charity. Most of its operations focus on the Republic of Moldova, the least developed country in Eastern Europe, located near the Black Sea where its people struggle to evolve from the stifling remnants of the former Soviet Union. MWCF is led by its founding president and fourteen other non-paid volunteer board members spread across the United States and Moldova...all dedicated to helping the less fortunate.

Support comes from financial donors and actively engaged colleagues from around the world. Individual cash contributions are leveraged by individual donors, participating governments, businesses, and other non-profits primarily in the USA and Western Europe. Some projects are developed in partnership with regional agribusiness logistics company Trans-Oil Group. In-country management is principally provided by Moldova non-governmental organization International Center for Collaboration and Development "PHOENIX".

Activities concentrate in five areas:
(1) constructing and renovating buildings and infrastructure...
(2) enabling urgent surgeries and critical medical care for desperate individuals...
(3) providing educational support in the form of establishing computer labs, donating classroom textbooks and materials, and supporting deserving students with tuition and living expenses helping to motivate them to continue their education beyond grade school...
(4) contributing humanitarian aid to hospitals, schools, orphanages, community centers, Hospice, farmers, and others in need...and
(5) more recently, regional crisis relief.

We surmise the majority of places targeted by Russian forces are civilian, not military.

Three suitable steps in evaluating the merit of a charity are to: (1) examine the caliber of its Board of Directors and staff, (2) trace where the money it receives goes and how it is spent, and (3) explore the extent and effectiveness exhibited in meeting its stated purpose. Readers are encouraged to review (and share) the following pages for an understanding of how MWCF establishes and maintains its credibility and worthiness as an organization...meet the Directors who have adopted the cause... scrutinize the pie chart of how donations are spent...survey the pin map showing the broad range of projects throughout Moldova.

"...a shared commitment to relieve suffering and improve the lives of children"

The best thing we can do for the children is help the war end on a relatively positive note as soon as possible.
